MRS. LANGTRY'S AFFAIRS. What a Prominent New Yorker Claim to Know About Them. The recent London lawsuits, which resulted in the declaration that Mrs. Langtry paid her husband a salary on condition that he does not molest her, has caused some comment here, where the facts of Mrs. Langtry's social ostracism while in this country are still remembered. A prominent New Yorker, who has considerable knowledge on the subject, said to a New York correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette the other day:

"Some two or three years ago Mr. Langtry, you may remember, came to this country, but refused to give any very satisfactory reason for his visit. During his stay in America he was for the greater part of the time my guest. He talked with me very freely, and I feel at liberty, under the present circumstances, to give publicity to the facts gathered from him. According to his story the first discovery of Mrs. Langtry in the Island of Jersey was made by the Duke of Bedford. The duke was very much struck by her beauty and paid her a great deal of attention. At that time Mr. and Mrs. Langtry were living in affluent circum-"Some two or three years ago Mr. Langity were living in affluent circumstances on an income which amounted, he claims, to 245,000. On his return to London from his visit, the Prince of Wales heard so much from Prince of Wales heard so much from Bedford of the extraordinary beauty of Mrs. Langtry that at his request that gentleman accompanied him on a trip to Jersey for the purpose of meeting the beauty. The Prince was as much pleased with Mrs. Langtry as was her friend, and he suggested that she make her debut in London society, effering to make it his business to request certain ladles in London society. effering to make it his business to request certain ladies in London society to act as her sponsors. The offer was accepted by the lady, whose head was already a little turned by the attention her charms attracted. None of these proceedings were looked upon with favor by Mr. Langtry, who foresaw that he was about to bid farewell forever to his quiet, peaceful life.

Mrs. Langtry's London life was always distracted to her husband. His wife's extravagance soon wined out wife a extravagance soon wiped out fortunes. Mr. Langtry told her he was ruined financially. "This farce," he said, "is played out. You married me for better, for worse; for richer, for poorer. You have had all the fat. You must now take the lean. I have sufficient influence to secure a Government appointment. We will retire rom society, take a small house, and ettle down together like respectable people for the rest of our lives.

Mrs. Langtry refused to go, and de-clared she would go on the stage first. Mr. Langtry informed her that if she did so he would not live with her. She retorted openly that the only man she ever cared for was Sir George Chet-wynd, and ended by running off to the Continent with Chetwynd, where they travelled under an assumed name travelled under an assumed name.
Naturally, when they returned to London the doors of society were closed.
Mrs. Paget, the daughter of Mrs. Paran Stevens, knowing these facts, saw to it that Mrs. Langtry's introductions were ignored, and that she was not received in society in New York. At this time Mr. and Mrs. Langtry separated. Un-der the laws of Jersey there is no such thing as a divorce.

An Artistic Trensure.

A dozen years ago an Autwerp tailor bought for a franc a dirty little picture which had belonged to an old doctor then recently deceased. The tailor hung the picture upon the wall, but did not think it worth the cost of cleaning, and nobody found it very attractive. A little while ago, however, an artist huppened to see it, and induced the owner to lend it to him to clean. No sooner was the first coat of dirt removed than there was seen in one of the corners the signature, "Pictro Paulo Rubens, 1614." The picture represents Christ blessing the world, and is said to be in excellent preservation. The tailor has already received several good offers for his picture; but he is waiting until a rich American "comes along."—[Pall Mall Gazette. picture upon the wall, but did not think it

AN OPEN STATEMENT.

As the daring burglar becomes reckless with success until his capture is only a question of time, so, little by little the screws of high prices for fine Clothing have been tightened on the people of Washington, until they have become restive under the pressure. The Golden Eagle Clothing Company saw the time was ripe to step in and rid the public of this incubus of exaction.

Our aim is not to amass a fortune, nor "Build a castle in Spain" in a few years.

but to build up a reputable business based on the principles of equity-justice between man and man. As evidence of our good intentions, we quot a few styles and prices which we think will interest you. We have just opened an elegant line of Children's Plaited complete line of Overcoats for Children of same age at $2.50. In Suits for Boys who wear long pants, say from 11 to 17 years, we have, a Superb Stock, rang-ing in price from $5 for Suit or Overcoat up to $18. In separate Pants our prices range from $1.25 up. We wish to say right here we keep the Finest Goods known to the trade at proper tionately low prices, but our cheaper grades are made with care and atten-tion, so that they are inferior to the finest only in quality of material. We have Men's Suits from $6.50 to $38;

Overconts from $4 to $40; in separate Trowsers we have 2,000 pairs, ranging from $2.50 up to $10, in every kind and ferred by some on that account. We have them in several grades and colors. The Norfolk, that negligee garment so popular with young men.

finds a large representation in our stock. In fact, if you want Anything
